Glasses for petite faces

One of the things I am constantly asked for are spectacle frames that fit the smaller adult face. Many petite spectacle wearers have had to accept children's glasses that all too often come emblazoned with the latest Disney or superhero character, further reducing their choice. Either this or they are wearing adult frames that are oversized, particularly in the arm length. It is rare in the days of mass manufacture to find adult glasses with options for shorter arm lengths and therefore many people end up with extra-long lengths of arm bent behind their ears, which is uncomfortable and not aesthetically very pleasing.

Due to the pressure on spectacle designers and manufacturers to offer a large array of different styles within their catalogues, they are restricted to the number of sizes that they can produce in each style. This results in the average face size being catered for but if you happen to fall outside of that range, there is just nothing for you. Historically there has been an acknowledgement that as we get older the physiology of our faces change and so some smaller styles for older faces have been produced but they tend to be outdated and not very appealing to the younger spectacle wearer.

This is why at Ringlands Optics, I specialise in sourcing petite frames for both men and ladies that are fun, fashionable and specifically designed to fit the smaller face. The arm lengths are proportionally shorter and the overall width of the frames is less; so that there are no compromises in fit. The styles are exciting and so you no longer need to compromise to get a good fit and you certainly won't be directed to the children's section!!
